in Rome.

Bishop Hogan has just received an in teresting letter from Rome, written by Birhop Glennon, who went to Rome to make the decennial diocesan episcopal visitation to the Vatican. The bishop gives a most interesting account of an audience with Pope Leo and declares that his holiness is in good health.

The letter is dated Monday, May 29, and is written on a letterhead of the Grand Hotel de la Minerve. It is as follows: "I know you will be pleased to learn that my official work at Rome is done. With the propaganda I got through last week The matters discussed outside the routing of the report had relation to the advisability of holding a fourth plenary council. The same was urged by the cardinal-elect, secretary of propaganda, even after I had innocently declared that I thought sufficient material for the same did not exist But more of this when I return. To-day had the honor of a papal audience. At 11 o'clock I arrived at the Court of St.

"First, the Swiss guards grouped in rank gave the military salute; second, ascended the grand stairway of the inner court, two stories, all white marble; third, entered the Clementine hall, second salute by the Swiss guard; fourth, the Palatine guard conducted me to the first ante-room, where I was met by gentlemen in waiting. The one who took my hat wore evening dress; the others, who set my hat away, wore red silk knee breeches, red stockings. Then I was conducted through four rooms, the first green, the second and succeeding ones red silk tapestries with glorious frescoes. My chaplain, Father Glass, of Sedalia, now a member of the congregation of the mission, was stopped at the green room. "When my time for audience came, I was escorted through two more rooms to the hall where his holiness received. The audience lasted half an hour and was, I need not say, the most interesting half hour of my life. What was discussed might be called routine, as, indeed, there are no special grievances of a diocesain nature to be brought before Rome; nor, on the other hand, is there any evidence that any diocesan grievance had preceded me to Rome. "But the hely father. He is simply to one who took my hat wore evening dress;

the other hand, is there any evidence that any diocesan grievance had preceded me to Rome.

"But the holy father. He is simply to be classed among the glorious mysteries; a skin as white as snow, an eye that sparkles, a clear voice, an unclouded intellect, a perfect memory, an undying activity, a most lovable personality. Missouri, Chile, Abyssinia-each he discussed and was at home at all. He is well, very well—I say it without reservation, mental or otherwise."

SUPPLY INEXHAUSTIBLE.

Lieut. Haines Declares Kansas Is an Excellent Field for Recruiting Officers.

Since the latest discussion of increasing the size of the army to meet the requirements in the Philippines began, three new recruiting officers have been put in the territory which has been covered by Lieu-tenant Haines, of the station here. The tenant Haines, of the station here. The new ones are Captain Burnham, at St. Joseph; Lieutenant Parker, at Topeka, and Lieutenant Weeks, at Leavenworth. Lieutenant Haines looks for a marked picking up in the recruiting business now, eighteen men having been taken in during the last three days of the week at the station here.

"Kansas is excellent on supplying soldiers," he said, "and, according to the disciplination.

"Kansas is excellent on supplying soldiers," he said, "and, according to the dispatch from Independence, published in The Journal this morning, the supply has no notion of giving out. I have sent posters to a number of towns, and expect I'll be getting some calls from them very soon."

The station sent twenty-four men to Presidio, Cal. over the Burlington yesterday, and six men to the Fifth cavalry in Porto Rico. "Of the thirty men," said the lieutenant, "four were ex-regulars, five or six ex-volunteers and about as many Modern Woodmen of America."

"AUNT MILLY" FAILED. So the Young School "Mom" Took a

Hand. "Hastily putting up a small lunch, the young school teacher hurried away for the day's duties; taught her physiology class the evil effects of coffee (that being the lesson for the day) then came home and made coffee the principal thing for dinner. She had been growing more and more neryous and irritable as the weeks passed by. Stomach trouble had set in and more or less bowel trouble, but she never had apless bowel trouble, but she never had applied to herself the teaching that coffee acts as a poison on many systems.

A package of Postum Food Coffee found its way into the house and was sent down to Aunt Milly, the cook, to make. In the morning when it was served, it was so inferior that it was pushed away in disgust and regular coffee called for. But the school teacher knew she must have help some way to get rid of coffee drinking, so she went down the next morning to make some Postum herself and to make it carefully, according to directions. The result was more satisfactory than she had ever dreamed. With rich cream it was better than the best coffee she had ever drank, and it made her hungry for breakfast just to smell it.

than the best coffee she had ever drank, and it made her hungry for breakfast just to smell it.

A week passed by and she became known as an enthusiast on the subject. One day at school a remark was made on her improved looks, and she related the story of the new coffee. Miss Smith, one of the teachers, remarked that she had always wanted something in place of coffee, and intended to try it. A few mornings afterward Miss Smith remarked: "We tried your old Postum at home, and nobody liked it. She was induced, however, to give it a trial under the personal direction of her own supervision. In order to know that it was bedied fifteen or twenty minutes. That cleared up the case, and Miss Smith is as enthusiastic over Postum as the other.

The little nephew in the house was perfectly delighted with the thought of breakfast. The greatest victory we have had is with sister, who has been a regular coffee devotee and held out against the Postum for some time, but after she had used Postum for about ten days, she said one morning," I must say I will take this in preference to coffee every time, so well just have Postum hereafter and none of the old-fashioned coffee.

Now when the teacher instructs a class in physical health the advantage of leaving off coffee with its poisonous effects." Janet Cooper, Nashville, Tenn.

HATTIE KAESTNER'S TROUBLE. Spinal Trouble Causes Her to Be the Central Figure in a Pathetic

Street Scene. A pathetic incident recently occurred at Sixth and Main streets. Street cleaners were at work upon Main street, and the asphalt was fairly flooded with water. In the sewer drains it was about a foot deep. A bright-looking young girl carrying a cane-seated chair started to cross the incane-seated chair started to cross the intersection of the ways just as a team and a cable car passed each other. In her agitation the girl stepped in the deep water, slipped a little and threw her head far back as if to gain her equilibrium. A dozen hands reached out from the curbstone and she was lifted to the sidewalk. But her troubles were not ended.

Police Surgeon Longan fortunately happened to be there. As soon as the girl could speak she told him to pull her head back into position. It took several valiant trials before this was accomplished, and all the while the poor sufferer was convulsed with pain. When she finally regained her normal angle, however, she said gayly, "There: I'm all right now. Thank you very much," and ambled on through the curious crowd. She was Hettle Kaestner, a brave little woman who has been afflicted with spinal troubles all her life.

It is the intention of the association to make, during the season of 1839-1900, some decided changes and improvements in the entertainment offered. The already very excellent orchestra will be enlarged by the addition of some thoroughly competent musicians, and, besides, at each concert of the series some distinguished soloist will be engaged. The intention, in fact, is to make the next season the most successful in the history of the association.

The "hose bridge" is a very simple device, but it will answer a long felt want.
The company has experienced much trouble from fires along the various lines by hose being laid across the tracks. With the "hose bridge" there will be no more delaying of street cars, though the tracks may be covered with hose. The new device is similar to the railroad frog used in tracking deralled cars. It raises the cars over the hose, thus allowing the cars to run on schedule time without interfering with the work of the firemen.

WIDENING OF HARRIS PLACE. Owners of Adjacent Property Will Improve This Continuation of

"George," the Man Who Cut Off His Nose Because People Ridiculed It, Besieged on His Island.

A party designated in the warrant for his arrest as "George," who will be remem-bered by readers of the items of police news as the man who cut off the end of law he is instigating lately caused the dismissal of his suits in Justice Spitz' court, but he succeeded yesterday in securing the arrest of the persons he accuses through Justice Withrow's court. Nick Burrett, on three charges, and Harry Wickham and J. A. Young, on one charge each, were arraigned before Justice Spitz about two weeks ago, but, after being continued, the cases were dismissed by Prosecutor Howell because St. Clair would not give the names of the men he represented in the prosecution. Warrants were at once secured for the arrest of the defendants from Justice Withrow, who says he will try the caset.

MUST GIVE HIM A DIPLOMA. James H. Cock Wins His Suit Against the Medico-Chirurgical

College. A writ of mandamus was issued by Judge Gates, of the circuit court, yester day, compelling the Medico-Chirurgical college, of Kansas City, to issue a diploma of graduation to James H. Cock, a member of the senior class that graduated last March. Cock passed all the examinations with his class, but the faculty withheld his diploma because he had been at the school but one year. But the court held that as he was admitted to the senior class, passed all the examinations and showed himself proficient, the school had no right to withhold the diploma.

An Unnamed Hero.

From the London Dally News.

Among the melancholy applications for Teave to presume death" in the Stella disaster was one touching in its revelation of a deed of heroism. The applicant was a Miss Baker, whose father, a major, had gone down with the vessel. Both were about to perish when the father made a piteous appeal to a boatload of passengers, who were leaving the side, to find room for his daughter. One man, of whose identity there is absolutely no trace, instantly stepped back to the ship, and allowed the lady to take his place. As the boat cleared the side, the vessel went down, carrying with it the girl's father and her unknown rescuer. How beautiful! how unutterably sad! His anonymity seems somehow to enhance the heroic grandeur of his death. Nothing would have been gained by knowing his name. A man capable of such a deed wants no mortuary honors, nor the local habitation of a monument. He belongs to the infinite of greatness, and his fitting grave is the sea. from the London Dally News.

Useful Hint to Henfeverites.

From the New York Tribune.

A story is told of a woman in England who unexpectedly came into a fortune and promptly hunted up a country house, where she played the role of chatelaine to the manor born according to her own ideas of the part. One day some of her old-time friends came to see her, and she condescended to show them all over the place. "What beautiful chickens!" exclaimed the visitors when they came to the poultry yard.

"Yes. All prize birds," haughtily explained the hostess.

"Do they lay every day?"

"O, they could, of course; but (grandiloquently) in our position it isn't necessary for them to do so." From the New York Tribune.

"George" furnished his own bluff, however; the river furnished the water.

The warrant was sworn out by one Charles Williams, who brought charges of common assault, and was put in the hands of Constables Skinner and Sechrest, of Justice Spitz court, to serve. They found the man they sought on an island formed by the city dump and the freshed, at the foot of Gillis street. He was out in the water up to his neck gathering withes, which he uses as an article of commerce, but on being told that he was wanted, and why, retired to the fastness of his island and announced that he would not be taken.
